Pentagon Says Hunt Was Made for Pilot

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon says a large-scale sea search has produced no sign of a pilot downed by Communist Chinese MIGs and has been abandoned.

The search—involving U.S. carriers, destroyers and airplanes—was for Lt. (j.g.) Joseph P. Dunn whose Navy A-1 Skyraider was shot down when it strayed near Communist China's Hainan Island Tuesday, a Defense Department statement said.

Spokesmen would not say how close search operations were to Hainan. The Communist Chinese claim Dunn's plane and another Skyraider violated its airspace and accused the United States of "war provocations."

The Defense Department statement on the search was issued Friday after the Copley News Service published a story that the Pentagon had refused permission to the U.S. 7th Fleet to search near the Communist Red Chinese Island.

The statement did not challenge the story but said the 7th Fleet "responded with a large-scale search."

It said the second pilot saw Dunn parachute from the plane, and said a beeper signal from a rescue device pilots carry was heard eight hours after Dunn went down.

"No ships had reached the scene at this time," the statement said, "and the carriers were still 10 hours from helicopter-launching position."

The statement said Vice Adm. W. F. Bringle, 7th Fleet Commander, dispatched a destroyer and several planes which were later joined by the carriers Coral Sea and Kearsarge and ore destroyers.

The vessels "were sent to ward the actual location of the incident," it said, but all results of the "extensive electronic and visual search" for the downed pilot were negative.

The Defense Department earlier had said the plane was shot down about five miles off Hainan. Communist China claims a territorial limit 12 miles out.

Hostile Reception Given to Romney

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Richard M. Nixon campaign operation in New Hampshire appears to be rolling smoothly, but Gov. George Romney, Nixon's principal rival in the upcoming Republican presidential primary, has hit a bumpy stretch.

Friday brought Romney enough voter hostility to faze a lesser man, but he shrugged it off and showed no signs of slowing down.

One voter berated Romney for a quarter of an hour for not supporting Barry Goldwater in the 1964 presidential race, another accused him of being "a crook just like any other politician," and one of Manchester's blunter citizens told him to his face he drinks too much.

This last stunned Romney, who not only doesn't drink alcoholic beverages but abstains from coffee as well.

Other potential candidates were not idle Friday. There were these developments:

Former Gov. George Wallace of Alabama, making his first out-of-state speech since he announced his third-party candidacy, told a Chicago audience he feels he appeals chiefly to Midwest Democrats.

Florida's Gov. Claude Kirk, a Republican, embarked on a stop-Wallace campaign, told a San Francisco audience Wallace can't win the presidency and his candidacy will hurt whoever the Republicans put up.

And in New York, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, the Democratic "peace" candidate, kept alive the speculation that the President may eventually resort to use of atomic weapons in Vietnam.

Joy Reigns In Families Of Fliers

OSCODA, Mich. (AP)—Ruth Overly, the wife of a U.S. flier released by the North Vietnamese, prepared today for her husband's homecoming. And the pilot's son was assured his 10th birthday would be a happy one.

The Air Force Pilot, Maj. Morris Overly, 39, met his wife, from Portsmouth, Ohio, while he was stationed at Lockbourne Air Force Base, near Columbus, Ohio.

He telephoned her from Thailand Friday, and she at first could hardly believe her husband had been freed.

"Tell me your children's names," she asked.

"Oh, thank God," she said. She said they did not mention his imprisonment in the phone conversation, but talked of family matters. Mike will be 10 Sunday, Debbie is 12.

Mrs. Robert Like of Troy Mich., a sister of Overly, who grew up in Detroit, said her brother may be flown to Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Ohio this weekend for medical observation and debriefing.

Mrs. Overly said she planned to meet him when he arrived.

This question should be examined by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and "indeed by the whole Senate," McCarthy said.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York filed a disclaimer with Wisconsin election officials saying he does not want to be on the ballot for that state's primary.

California Gov. Ronald Reagan, who is entered in the Wisconsin primary, came under attack from California Democrats Friday when Chancellor Franklin D. Murphy of the University of California at Los Angeles announced his resignation.

Rhodes Named In OSU Suit

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The NAACP named Gov. James A. Rhodes and two other state officials in a suit filed Friday in the continuing legal battle over alleged discrimination in hiring at Ohio State University construction projects.

The NAACP suit filed in federal court here alleges a non-compliance by the state with a court order of last May 17. U.S. District Judge Joseph P. Kinneary prohibited the state then from entering into contracts with firms that draw labor forces from sources that discriminate on the basis of race, color or union membership.

Logan Wilson, president of the American Council on Education, the leading association of colleges and universities, said of the change, "In my judgment this is a short sighted decision."

"In addition to the handicaps it places on advanced level education, its implications for the long-range trained manpower needs of the nation are alarming."

"The decision means that most college graduates in 1968 and students ending their first year of graduate school in 1968 will be drafted in the near future," Wilson said.

12 Are Killed As Arsonist Fires Tavern

MOBERLY, Mo. (AP) — Witnesses say a man entered a crowded tavern Friday, sloshed gasoline around, threw a lighted match and ran out. Twelve persons were killed in a frantic attempt to escape the blast of flame.

Clifford Ralzone, Randolph County prosecutor, said a murder charge would be lodged against William Edward Coleman, 36, an ex-convict who police said gave himself up at headquarters after the fire.

Police said the 12 victims piled up at the back door, which they couldn't open. Four persons—two men, a woman and her baby—got out the front door.

"I simply don't understand it," moaned the bewildered proprietor, Ray Curtis, who opened the small tavern just a week ago. "I thought Coleman was my friend."

In fact, Curtis said, Coleman helped clean up the place up for the opening.

On the back bar was a list of 10 names of persons who could not be served in the tavern as patrons under Missouri law, Curtis said. All 10 are ex-convicts, and the law does not permit them to loiter in places serving liquor or beer.

Coleman's name was on the list, Curtis said, but Coleman knew it and understood why he couldn't be a patron.

The tavern was on the first floor of a building housing the old three-story, 30-room Randolph Hotel. The flames burned out the interior of the tavern and ruined eight hotel rooms above it.

Mrs. Vivian McSparran, who was sitting near the front of the bar, told fire Chief LeRoy Willis that a man walked in carrying a five-gallon bucket of liquid.

"He walked to the middle of the tavern and started sloshing it around," Mrs. McSparran said. "He made a swinging arc, throwing the liquid all over the tavern. Then he threw a match into it and ran out."

Red Flights No Danger, Officials Say

WASHINGTON (AP) — Close approaches to the North American mainland by Soviet military planes on two occasions in February are being treated by defense officials as somewhat out of the ordinary but not threatening.

The Pentagon disclosed Friday night that three Soviet bombers of the Bison class, a long-range aircraft usually used for ocean reconnaissance, flew along the northern coast of Alaska the night of Feb. 12.

Earlier in the day the Pentagon confirmed a published report that five Soviet bombers of the Bear class made a pass by the coast of Newfoundland Feb. 9.

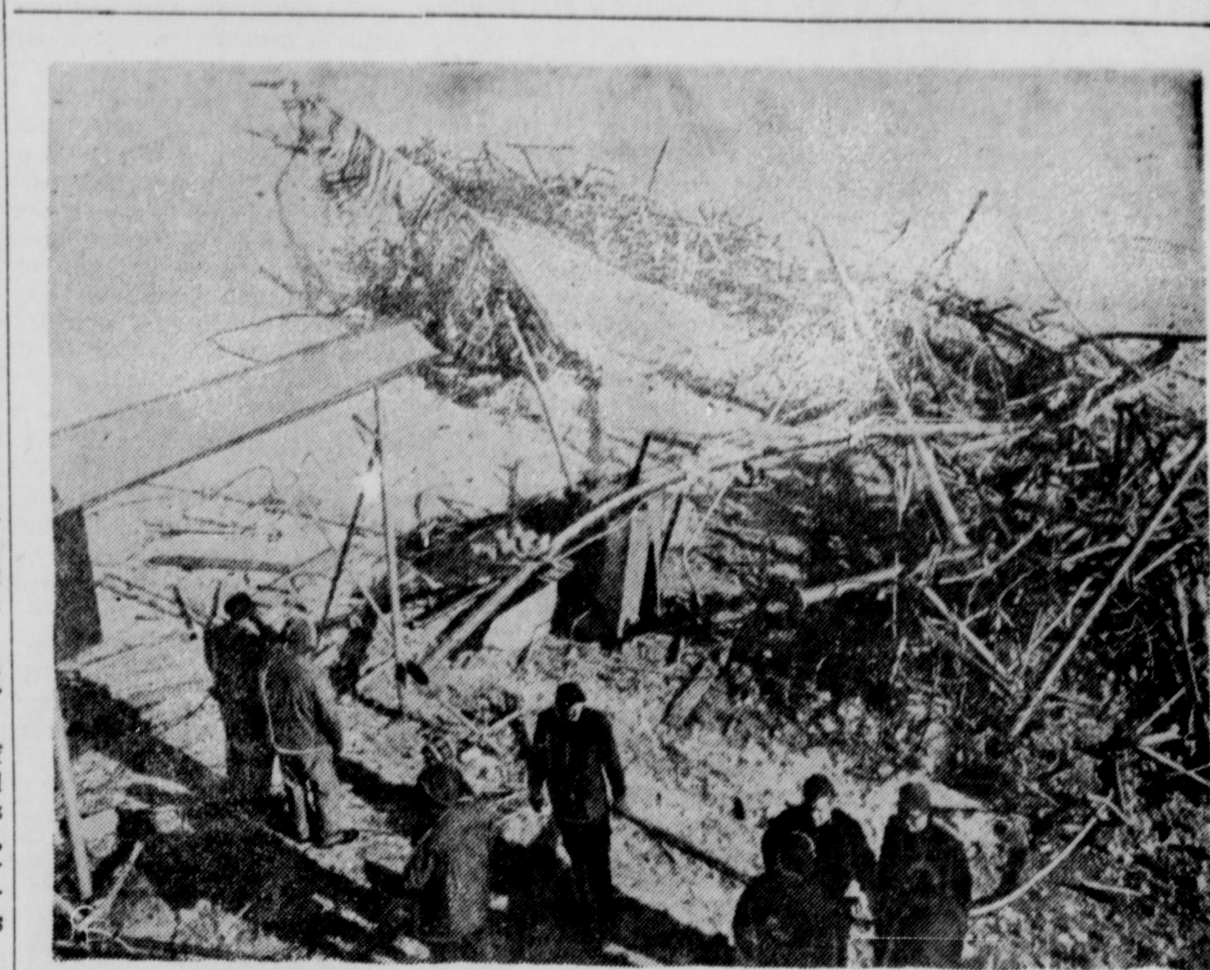

On both occasions, defense officials said U.S. interceptors, were sent aloft but the Soviet planes changed course of their own accord.

The Bisons flew a course about 80 miles off the coast of Alaska while the planes that swung by Newfoundland approached no closer than 70 miles, Pentagon spokesmen said.

There was no penetration of the air space of the North American continent on either occasion, they said.

An officer commenting on the Feb. 9 fly-by said Soviet aircraft have made flights over the North Atlantic in the past but "this is the nearest they've come in a long time."

Commerce's Trowbridge Quits; C.R. Smith Named

WASHINGTON (AP) — The surprise resignation of Alexander B. Trowbridge as secretary of commerce after eight months in the job raises to three the number of cabinet posts facing a reshuffle over the next several weeks.

President Johnson announced at a late afternoon news conference Friday the resignation of Trowbridge, 38, the youngest man ever to serve as secretary of commerce. To replace him he named C. R. Smith, 68, board chairman of American Airlines.

Smith has been in commercial aviation since he took over at age 29 a little line that hoppedscotched around East Texas to deliver the mail. He is known as a first-class administrator, a lover of high-stakes poker games and a man who speaks his mind.

And he is a Texan, born there and educated there like his new boss, the President.

Trowbridge, who was sworn in as secretary only last June 14 and resigned because of a heart condition, plans to leave the department on March 1, the same day Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara is scheduled to turn over command of the Pentagon to Clark Clifford.

John Gardner, secretary of health, education and welfare, also has resigned but no successor has been named. He is expected to remain in his post for several more weeks.

Asked if he were concerned by the number of top level departures, Johnson replied: "We always hate to see anyone depart, particularly men like Mr. Trowbridge."

Freed U.S. Pilots Head for Home

CLARK AIR FORCE BASE, Manila (P) — The first captured U.S. airmen to be freed by North Vietnam, two Air Force officers and a Navy lieutenant, chatted with their anxious wives via crackling telephone hookups, then headed home today. They reported themselves weary and "emotionally over-come."

Newsmen were allowed to question the three only briefly at Vientiane. Maj. Morris Overly, 39, of Detroit, spoke for the group. He gave his rank and serial number in a toneless voice then said: "I was shot down on Sept. 11, 1967. I was treated well as I observed other captured American pilots being treated. I would like to express my gratitude to the Vietnamese people."

The other two released airmen are Capt. Jon David Black, 30, of Johnson City, Tenn., and Lt. (j.g.) David Matheny, 23, of South Bend, Ind.

Stepping off the ICC plane at Vientiane, the three were dressed in ill-fitting gray cotton suits and dark blue turtleneck sweaters. They seemed bewildered as they walked toward the flashing camera lights that greeted them. The Air Force had then changed into Air Force issue pajamas and bath-robes for the hop to the U.S. Air Force Base at Udorn in Thailand and then on to Clark.

Replying to a newsman's question in Vientiane, Overly said he could not tell why he had been picked to be freed but that he thought the group was freed "to show sympathy with the peace-loving people of America." He said captured U.S. pilots were being treated properly by Hanoi "even to the point of good medical treatment." Overly said he felt well but was "physically a little weary" and "emotionally over-come."

Hue Citadel Still Holds Out Against Allies

SAIGON (P) — U.S. planes aimed one of the heaviest bombardments of the war—nearly 1.5 million pounds of explosives—at Communist troops threatening the northwest frontier outpost of Khe Sanh, the U.S. Command reported today.

Along the eastern portion of South Vietnam's northern frontier, two ground clashes were reported and three enemy tanks were sighted.

These developments boosted speculation that the expected giant Red assault on Khe Sanh might be accompanied by simultaneous attacks on other allied outposts all along the frontier. Such a coordinated push likely would hamper quick reinforcement of the 5,000 U.S. Marines at Khe Sanh.

Four or five North Vietnamese divisions are poised in and around the demilitarized zone, perhaps up to 50,000 troops, with an estimated 20,000 of them around Khe Sanh.

No ground attacks have been reported on Marine positions around Khe Sanh since Feb. 8, but Communist gunners have shelled the base daily. They fired in 85 mortar rounds Friday, killing one Marine and wounding 10.

About 50 miles below the front part of Hue's Citadel for the 18th day tried today to drive back attacking U.S. Marines with a new barrage of grenades and small arms fire and hit an American tank with a rocket.

About 1,000 Marines and 3,000 South Vietnamese troops now are in the fight for the Citadel in Hue, 400 miles northeast of Saigon. An estimated 2,000 Communist troops seized much of the city Jan. 31 in the early stages of the enemy offensive against major South Vietnamese towns and cities.

South Vietnamese marines were reported to have pushed their way to the gates of the Citadel's palace grounds, which the Communists still hold.

The sighting of the enemy tanks was only the second reported in the war. The North Vietnamese used nine Russian-designed PT76 light amphibious tanks when they overran the Lang Vei Special Forces camp five miles west of Khe Sanh Feb. 7. Six of those tanks were destroyed in the battle for the camp and U.S. fighter-bomber pilots reported disabling two others the next day.

U.S. Marines at a forward outpost near Con Thien and then air observers reported sighting three North Vietnamese tanks Friday in the demilitarized zone north of the Ben Hai River and about four miles north of Con Thien, along the eastern part of the frontier. The U.S. Command said Marine tank and artillery crews fired at the enemy tanks at long range but the enemy withdrew without returning the fire.

Just to the west of Gio Linh, the easternmost of the allied frontier posts, U.S. Marines fought eight hours with a Communist force of unknown size. Four Leathernecks were killed and eight wounded. There was no report on enemy casualties.

Bandit Gets Cash Near Batavia

BATAVIA, Ohio (AP) — An armed man escaped with $1,323 from a branch of the Milford Home Savings Loan Co. near here Friday.

Brandishing a small revolver, the bandit held up the office at Day Heights in southern Clermont County and locked a female employee in a storage room.

Educators Protest Draft Deferment Changes

NEW YORK (AP) — Educators at several large universities say the abolition of draft deferments for most graduate students could threaten research, reduce the supply of future teachers and cripple graduate school enrollments.

State administrators denounced the new policy as short-sighted and several said other systems of drafting from the affected group could have cushioned the impact.

They spoke out Friday after the Johnson administration abolished graduate deferments except for medical and dental students, students in related fields and those who have completed two or more years of their studies by June.

At the same time the National Security Council suspended indefinitely the official list of essential activities and critical occupations that Selective Service draft boards have used as a guideline in making occupational deferments.

Administration officials estimated that 150,000 or more men would be drafted as the result of the changes in graduate deferments.

A number of educators, including Yale President Kingman Brewster, said they believed there should be no student deferments and the nation should employ a system of random selection for the draft.

"It would be better to eliminate all deferments and to draft by lot across all years of students' careers, undergraduate and graduate," said James M. Moudy, chancellor of Texas Christian University in Fort Worth.

"It would have been preferable. . . had the decision

been to select a portion of the required numbers from each of the seven age groups from 19 through 28," said Harvard's Tusey.

Graduate schools have been worrying about the drought of deferments since President Johnson signed the 1967 Selective Service Act nearly eight months ago.

The act provides for deferments only for graduate students in "medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine, osteopathy or optometry, or in such other subjects necessary to the maintenance of the national health, safety, or interest as identified by the director of Selective Service upon the advice of the National Security Council."

Graduate students for the ministry are exempted without regard to the council's views. The effect of the suspension of the lists of essential activities and critical occupations on persons with occupational deferments was not immediately clear.

Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national director of the Selective Service System, noted in a telegram to all state draft directors that local boards would retain "discretion to grant, in individual cases, occupational deferments based on a showing of essential community need."

The security council made no mention of changing rules for deferring students seeking bachelor's degrees.

The graduate student change applies to incoming and first-year graduate students. There are an estimated 400,000 male students receiving their bachelor's degrees this year and an estimated 100,000 first year graduate students.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army will have more than 15,000 men ready for quick use in controlling city riots this summer.

SAIGON (P) — U.S. planes aimed one of the heaviest bombardments of the war—nearly 1.5 million pounds of explosives—at Communist troops threatening the northwest frontier outpost of Khe Sanh, the U.S. Command reported today.

Along the eastern portion of South Vietnam's northern frontier, two ground clashes were reported and three enemy tanks were sighted.

These developments boosted speculation that the expected giant Red assault on Khe Sanh might be accompanied by simultaneous attacks on other allied outposts all along the frontier. Such a coordinated push likely would hamper quick reinforcement of the 5,000 U.S. Marines at Khe Sanh.

Four or five North Vietnamese divisions are poised in and around the demilitarized zone, perhaps up to 50,000 troops, with an estimated 20,000 of them around Khe Sanh.

No ground attacks have been reported on Marine positions around Khe Sanh since Feb. 8, but Communist gunners have shelled the base daily. They fired in 85 mortar rounds Friday, killing one Marine and wounding 10.

About 50 miles below the front part of Hue's Citadel for the 18th day tried today to drive back attacking U.S. Marines with a new barrage of grenades and small arms fire and hit an American tank with a rocket.

About 1,000 Marines and 3,000 South Vietnamese troops now are in the fight for the Citadel in Hue, 400 miles northeast of Saigon. An estimated 2,000 Communist troops seized much of the city Jan. 31 in the early stages of the enemy offensive against major South Vietnamese towns and cities.

South Vietnamese marines were reported to have pushed their way to the gates of the Citadel's palace grounds, which the Communists still hold.

The sighting of the enemy tanks was only the second reported in the war. The North Vietnamese used nine Russian-designed PT76 light amphibious tanks when they overran the Lang Vei Special Forces camp five miles west of Khe Sanh Feb. 7. Six of those tanks were destroyed in the battle for the camp and U.S. fighter-bomber pilots reported disabling two others the next day.

U.S. Marines at a forward outpost near Con Thien and then air observers reported sighting three North Vietnamese tanks Friday in the demilitarized zone north of the Ben Hai River and about four miles north of Con Thien, along the eastern part of the frontier. The U.S. Command said Marine tank and artillery crews fired at the enemy tanks at long range but the enemy withdrew without returning the fire.

Just to the west of Gio Linh, the easternmost of the allied frontier posts, U.S. Marines fought eight hours with a Communist force of unknown size. Four Leathernecks were killed and eight wounded. There was no report on enemy casualties.

Educators Protest Draft Deferment Changes

NEW YORK (AP) — Educators at several large universities say the abolition of draft deferments for most graduate students could threaten research, reduce the supply of future teachers and cripple graduate school enrollments.

State administrators denounced the new policy as short-sighted and several said other systems of drafting from the affected group could have cushioned the impact.

They spoke out Friday after the Johnson administration abolished graduate draft deferments except for medical and dental students, students in related fields and those who will have completed two or more years of their studies by June.

At the same time the National Security Council suspended indefinitely the official list of essential activities and critical occupations that Selective Service draft boards have used as a guideline in making occupational deferments.

Administration officials estimated that 150,000 or more men would be drafted as the result of the changes in graduate deferments.

A number of educators, including Yale President Kingman Brewster, said they believed there should be no student deferments and the nation should employ a system of random selection for the draft.

"It would be better to eliminate all deferments and to draft by lot across all years of students' careers, undergraduate and graduate," said James M. Moudey, chancellor of Texas Christian University in Fort Worth.

"It would have been preferable. . . had the decision

been to select a portion of the required numbers from each of the seven age groups from 19 through 26," said Harvard's Tusey.

Graduate schools have been worrying about the drought of deferments since President Johnson signed the 1967 Selective Service Act nearly eight months ago.

The act provides for deferments only for graduate students in "medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine, osteopathy or optometry, or in such other subjects necessary to the maintenance of the national health, safety, or interest as are identified by the director of Selective Service upon the advice of the National Security Council."

Graduate students for the ministry are exempted without regard to the council's views. The effect of the suspension of the lists of essential activities and critical occupations on persons with occupational deferments was not immediately clear.

Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national director of the Selective Service System, noted in a telegram to all state draft directors that local boards would retain "discretion to grant, in individual cases, occupational deferments based on a showing of essential community need."

The security council made no mention of changing rules for deferring students seeking baccalaureate degrees.

The graduate student change applies to incoming and first-year graduate students. There are an estimated 400,000 male students receiving their bachelor's degrees this year and an estimated 100,000 first year graduate students.

New Soybean Varieties Developed for Export

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,

Three soybean varieties, appearing for the first time on the list of soybeans recommended for production in Ohio, represent a significant landmark in soybean breeding. The three varieties are large-seeded beans for the export market.

Named Disoy, Magna, and Prie, seed of the three new soybeans will be increased in 1968 by certified growers and should be available for commercial plantings in 1969.

Dr. Paul Smith, Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center soybean breeder, reports that the three varieties have been grown and evaluated in Ohio and other cornbelt states. They are cooperative releases of the Crops Research Division of Agricultural Research Service; the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Stations in Iowa, Illinois, and Minnesota.

"Nearly half of the total U. S. production of soybeans enters the export market," explains Smith. "On this basis, more than 25 million bushels of Ohio soybeans worth more than $60 million, are exported each year."

Other nations especially Japan, are interested in large-seeded soybeans for the manufacture of fermented foods for human consumption. India, where protein for the human diet is obtained primarily from vegetables, has also expressed interest in the new soybeans," Dr. Smith reports.

Disoy, Magna, and Prize represent three different maturities (early, midseason, and midlate) and therefore extend the acreage in Ohio under which they can be grown. Seed quality, protein and oil content, and lodging are similar to presently grown Chippewa and Harosoy 63 varieties.

All the new varieties are susceptible to phytophthora root rot and are similar to present varieties in susceptibility to other soybean diseases. Seed size averages 60 to 70 per cent greater than Chippewa and Harosoy 63.

The new-type soybeans have several major drawbacks. Yields are significantly less than for soybeans now being grown. All three require very careful combining to prevent splitting. And, major current market demand is for high-oil beans.

The real potential for these new soybeans lies in years ahead. Special marketing channels must be established to move the beans into the export trade. A market must offer a premium price for these food beans to offset the lower yields of Ohio farmers are to profitably produce them.

Smith says the large-seeded soybean varieties can be used green by home gardeners, canners, and frozen food processors, as well as for deep-fat frying or as dry beans in soup. New products and new uses for beans of the Magna, Disoy, and Prize type may also be developed.

Cereal Leaf Beetle Expected To Cause Damage in '68

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

The cereal leaf beetle, first found in Ohio in 1963 and now established in all parts of the state, will probably be present in sufficient numbers in some fields in northwest Ohio to cause economic losses in the 1968 oats crop.

Dr. Robert E. Treece, research entomologist at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, has been responsible for research with the cereal leaf beetle in Ohio. He reports that a survey of cereal leaf beetle infested areas of Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, and Illinois in 1967 is helping pinpoint areas where losses may be heaviest in 1968.

Treece says that most severe cereal leaf beetle damage is likely to occur in the first three tiers of counties eastward from the Indiana-Ohio state line extending southward into Darke, Shelby, and Logan Counties. Weather during April and May, however, will play a major part in determining extent of losses. Warm weather during these months would tend to increase beetle hatch and result in more damage. A cool, wet season similar to 1967 would tend to reduce damage.

Most crop loss results from feeding of the larval stage of the insect which removes leaf tissue between vein while the lower leaf surface remains intact. Adult beetles also feed on the oats leaf but cut long slits entirely through the leaf Since oats have such a low market value, control measures probably will not be economical except in extremely severe infestations of beetles where considerable yield reduction is likely.

Treece says further details on the 1968 situation and control recommendations will be available as the season progresses.

EFFECTIVE control chemicals are available for either ground or aerial application. These include malathion, Sevin, and Guthion.

Farm Conservation Plan Battles For Political Life

By OVID A. MARTIN
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—One of the oldest and most widely used federal farm programs—financial aid to farmers for conservation efforts—faces in Congress this year perhaps the toughest battle of its life.

It is known as the agricultural Conservation Program — "ACP" to Agriculture Department administrators and farmers. Under it, the government shares with farmers the cost of projects for conservation of soil, water and wildlife resources.

Several million farmers participate in this program annually—far more than take part in any other single farm-aid program.

The program faces tough going because President Johnson has recommended to a Congress, insistent on budget-cutting, that funds for it be limited to $100 million for the 1969 crop year. For many years Congress has provided upwards of $250 million for annual payments.

Ever since its enactment in 1936, after the Supreme Court knocked out the precedent-breaking Agricultural Adjustment Act authorizing federal crop controls, the ACP program has enjoyed a high degree of support in Congress. In the beginning and for many years, $500 million annually was voted for the program.

Three presidents have sought unsuccessfully to reduce the ACP fund—Dwight D. Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy and Johnson.

Projects under the program between 1936 and 1966 included the construction of 1,958,000 ponds and water pits on farms for conservation of moisture and for providing water for livestock.

Another major effort was the establishment of temporary cover crops on 465,679,000 acres of land to protect them from erosion by wind and water. Another was the establishment of contour stripcropping on 11', 825,000 acres of land, also to protect the soil from erosion.

Planting of trees and shrubs on more than 4 million acres have provided protection from erosion. Construction of 239,895 wells for livestock water and for protection of vegetative cover on surrounding soil was another part of the program.

Payments were made for improvement of forest stands on 3,542,000 acres of land.

CHET Randolph, executive vice president of the American Soybean Association, reports that efforts are already underway to develop marketing channels for the new beans in several midwestern states. But he urges soybean growers to go slow on moving into production of the new varieties.

"I have met with Japanese food manufacturers several times and they desire a closer relationship with growers. One plant in Japan pays 80 cents a bushel premium for quality soybeans for food making. However, this is a very specialized market and it is difficult to keep beans identified all the way from the farmer to the elevator, to the terminal, on the ship, unloading in Japan, and then through a wholesaler to the manufacturer.

"My advice to any grower considering producing these vegetable beans is to have a contract before he plants," says Randolph.

Randolph reports that in his efforts to develop new soybean markets in Japan, he has found that Ohio-grown soybeans have a good reputation with manufacturers of Tofu, a major Japanese soybean food product. OMI Ohio - Michigan - Indiana bean sell at a premium because normally they are high protein, good quality, and larger seeded than soybeans grown elsewhere in the U.S.

As new foods are developed and new export markets established, Disoy, Magna, and Prie will become more important in the production plans of farmers in Ohio and other cornbelt states.

For thrift use nonfat dry milk in cooking and as a beverage, but plan to get your vitamin D from another source such as deep yellow or dark green leafy vegetables or sunshine. You can rely on fortified fluid milk as a principal source of vitamin D, but it costs more. For a beverage some families mix equal amounts of reconstituted nonfat dry milk and fresh whole milk for a richer better flavor.

If there is a difference in price, buy fresh milk without added vitamins and minerals unless you rely on fortified milk as a principal source of vitamin D.

Use evaporated milk in cooking. (Check label to see if Vitamin D is added.)

Buy nonfat dry milk in as large quantities as you can store and use without waste.

Here's a gourmet dish, Chicken Paprika, that can be easily prepared in less than an hour, so why not try it while chicken is plentiful? USDA food specialists developed and tested this recipe for 6 servings of 3 cup each.

3 chicken thighs
3 chicken half-breasts
1½ teaspoons salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
¼ cup flour
2 tablespoons fat or oil
¼ cup diced onions
¾ cup hot water
2 teaspoons lemon juice (omit if buttermilk is used)
3 tablespoons flour
2 cups sour cream or 1½ cups cultured buttermilk
2 cups cooked noodles
2 teaspoons paprika

Remove bones, skin, and excess fat from chicken. Cut pieces in half. Season chicken with salt and pepper. Roll chicken in ¼ cup flour. Brown chicken slowly in hot fat, 10 to 15 minutes. Add onions, hot water, and lemon juice.

Cook, covered, over low heat about 40 minutes or until chicken is tender. Skim off any excess fat. Blend 3 tablespoons flour with ¼ cup of sour cream or buttermilk.

Stir into chicken mixture. Stir in remaining sour cream or buttermilk and noodles. Simmer, uncovered, 5 minutes. Add paprika and mix well.

NOTE: To obtain 2 cups cooked noodles, use 1½ cups uncooked noodles. Use narrow, medium or wide noodles, as you prefer.

WASHINGTON (AP)—One of the oldest and most widely used federal farm programs—financial aid to farmers for conservation efforts—faces in Congress this year perhaps the toughest battle of its life.

It is known as the agricultural Conservation Program — "ACP" to Agriculture Department administrators and farmers. Under it, the government shares with farmers the cost of projects for conservation of soil, water and wildlife resources.

Several million farmers participate in this program annually—far more than take part in any other single farm-aid program.

The program faces tough going because President Johnson has recommended to a Congress, insistent on budget-cutting, that funds for it be limited to $100 million for the 1969 crop year. For many years Congress has provided upwards of $250 million for annual payments.

Ever since its enactment in 1936, after the Supreme Court knocked out the precedent-breaking Agricultural Adjustment Act authorizing federal crop controls, the ACP program has enjoyed a high degree of support in Congress. In the beginning and for many years, $500 million annually was voted for the program.

Three presidents have sought unsuccessfully to reduce the ACP fund—Dwight D. Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy and Johnson.

Projects under the program between 1936 and 1966 included the construction of 1,958,000 ponds and water pits on farms for conservation of moisture and for providing water for livestock.

Another major effort was the establishment of temporary cover crops on 465,679,000 acres of land to protect them from erosion by wind and water. Another was the establishment of contour strip-cropping on 11', 825,000 acres of land, also to protect the soil from erosion.

Planting of trees and shrubs on more than 4 million acres have provided protection from erosion. Construction of 239,895 wells for livestock water and for protection of vegetative cover on surrounding soil was another part of the program.

Payments were made for improvement of forest stands on 3,542,000 acres of land.

How does Pickaway County look to an outsider?

An interesting and provocative question, it's true, and one that will be answered by an expert in the upcoming Pickaway County Community Development Seminar to be held in two all-day sessions on Wednesday, Feb. 28, and Wednesday, March 6, at the L & K Restaurant, 9:30 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. each day.

Dr. John S. Bottum, who is leader of the Community Resource Development Department at the Ohio State University, will give the answers to the above question in the opening session of the seminar on Feb. 28.

The planning committee of the development seminar today released the other topics of the seminar's program. These are: Community Communication and Cooperation; Solid Waste Disposal; Roadblocks to Community Development; Community Planning; Financing Community Development; Educational Opportunities; Social, Cultural and Recreational Needs; and Hospital and Medical Facilities.

This seminar will undoubtedly be one of the most complete and informative one ever conducted in the area. The seminar will be sponsored by the Circleville Area Chamber of Commerce and the Cooperative Extension Service. Persons interested in community development are welcome to enroll in the seminar by calling the County Extension Office, 474-7534.

Agriculture Center at Wooster Works for Future

By STEPHEN H. MILLER

Associated Press Writer

WOOSTER, Ohio (AP) — They're raising cattle on old strip mines and checking beef on the hoof with sonar.

They're putting seeds in little packages that just might guarantee healthy growth and they're hunting for bacteria that, for a change, might protect crops instead of destroying them.

They're spending more than $7 million a year at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center here — and they're expecting it to pay off at 10,000 per cent.

"It's 100 to one," says Director Roy M. Kottman. "For every one dollar spent on agricultural research, $100 is returned to the economy."

Kottman, who doubles as Ohio State University's dean of agriculture and home economics, is in charge of 140 scientists and specialists at the center and its 10 branches. The Ohio State branch, where the center began 76 years ago, now offers the services of an additional 175 faculty members and specialists.

Ohio pays more than half the bills for the center, federal grants account for about another fourth and private contracts and other projects cover the rest.

The center now has more than 300 projects under way, some of which might have been considered science fiction 20 years ago.

Cattle are being raised on strip mine land in Noble County near Caldwell. Stripped land sells for about $10 an acre, but the center says that if properly restored, it can support cattle ranches competitive with those in the west for relatively small initial investments.

The center is experimenting with individually "packaged" seeds containing enough nutrients and water to assure healthy growth. Ones under development now are strung together like machine gun ammunition and Kottman says the concept could "revolutionize" the implement industry.

The seed project is in the hands of the same microclimate specialists who not long ago found that sheets of black plastic over newly seeded ground promoted healthy growth by retaining heat and moisture.

Center scientists have found that sonar, developed for sea warfare in World War II, can determine if a beef animal will produce lean meat or fat.

"You don't have to slaughter the animal to find out if he's all blubber or if he has some lean meat," says Kottman.

The center is now trying to find a way to use benevolent bacteria to replace dangerous chemical crop sprays. The project follows discovery that some harmless bacteria are apparently able to destroy harmful ones.

"We can pick them up with an electron microscope," Kottman says, "but we don't know what they're doing there. They might be doing some good, in fact."

Wooster also has a direct reading emission spectrograph which can check plant tissue for 16 different minerals. Hooked up to a computer, it is telling scientists quickly just how much of those minerals a crop needs for proper nutrition.

Last year, the center produced PH7N, an inbred corn resistant to major damaging insects and diseases, including the maize dwarf mosaic virus which attracted national attention and destroyed five million bushels of corn shortly after it appeared near Portsmouth in 1962.

In 1946, Ohio's soybean crop was worth $8 million. In 1966, it was worth $102 million. And for what Kottman calls Ohio's "Cinderella crop," the center last year helped develop four new soybean varieties.

It is now working on still more types of soybeans and a soft red wheat with higher protein content and better baking qualities.

Backing up his claim of 10,000 per cent returns — a claim shared by federal officials for agricultural research in general — Kottman cites Ohio's greenhouse vegetable industry, which is now by far the nation's largest.

In the 1940s, tobacco mosaic virus hit greenhouse tomatoes in Ohio. Within three years and at a cost of $50,000, the center produced a resistant tomato which recovered the $5 million loss caused by the disease. This has gone on to become the major greenhouse crop in Ohio.

Soybean-Corn Clinic Slated At Teays Valley Thursday

JOHN REISER

John Reiser, the champion soybean grower of Illinois, and Dr. Grover Triplett, of the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center at Wooster, will head an array of speakers at the 1968 Buckeye Corn and Soybean Clinic Thursday at Teays Valley High School.

Reiser, a farmer in Cass County, Ill., set a national soybean production record of 82.7 bushels per acre in 1965. He is one of the speakers at the event scheduled from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. with a coffee hour starting at 8:30 a. m.

An estimated 700 farmers will attend the all-day event and hear Reiser tell how he produces soybean yields more than double the national average.

Reiser is the first to admit there is no hocus-pocus to growing 80 bushel soybeans. "It takes good land, plenty of fertilizer, weed control, early planting, a high yielding variety and a good shake from the weatherman," he says.

Dr. Triplett has spent considerable time on minimum tillage, narrow crops, soil management and all cultural practices.

Dr. Triplett will wind up the program of all industry speakers and will be a member of the panel for the question and answer period.

Farming experts from six of the top companies in agriculture will appear here in one of 50 such clinics being held in an 11-state Midwestern area.

This panel will discuss the most modern farming techniques known and give examples of their successful use in building profits of $20 an acre and more for top farmers.

Besides talking about high plant populations, the speakers will discuss minimum tillage for lower labor costs, proper seed selection for maximum profit, narrow row planting for better use of sunlight and moisture, chemical weed and insect control for added profit, low loss harvesting and storage for reduced moisture penalties.

At the end of the final item on the program, one lucky farmer will win a General Electric portable television in a door drawing.

Local dealers cooperating in the clinic are Groveport Implement, Pickaway Crop Service, DeKalb dealers. Underwriting the cost of the Buckeye Clinic are Allis Chalmers Manufacturing Co., DeKalb Agricultural Assn., Anchem Products Inc., Shell Chemical Co., Behlen Manufacturing Co. and Smith Douglas Fertilizer.

A Time To Weep

The unusual action of a Frenchman, Claude J. Despauch, is not significant, except that it offers a wistful sort of hope to Americans who want to be loved.

He walked into the Geneva office of New York's First National Bank, carrying a 2.2-pound bar of gold. This he exchanged for $1,128.62 in U. S. currency. He's not rich, but he wanted to reverse, in his own small way, the drain of gold from the United States to France.

He wants Americans to know that not all Frenchmen approve of De Gaulle's anti-American policy. "After all," he said, "without the United States France would probably not be free today."

It's enough to make the average Ugly American break down and weep with happiness.

New Stamps

The Post Office has produced some ugly stamps in its time. The increase in price of stamps seems to have inspired it to plumb the depths of its inartistic taste anew.

The first of the six-centers, the Franklin D. Roosevelt stamp, bears an unflattering portrait of the late President. Then the stamp-makers guillotined him, cutting the head off right below the chin.

And as a final touch, they colored the whole thing — face, hair, eye-glasses and all — a murky sepia, and stuck it on a stark white background.

The next six-cent stamp shows a small, blue-tinted White House, framed with blobs of green, and overpowered with an outsize American flag flying, in full glorious red, white and blue against the white sky of the stamp.

It is a mystery why the United States finds it almost impossible to produce beautiful stamps. Monaco, which has nothing but gambling casinos and Princess Grace, prints lovely stamps. So does San Marino, a country so tiny that it isn't even a pin-point on the map.

Even some of the deprived iron curtain countries print delightful stamps, beautifully executed in the most subtle colors.

A stamp collector alleges that the U. S. Post Office selects its stamps through an advisory committee. Perhaps that explains it.

No responsible individual, not even the Capitol architect, would choose such appalling pictures and colors for the American stamps. It must be the result of a committee compromise.

Diversion Possibility

Assuming the seizure of the USS Pueblo was a well thought out move by the North Koreans and which ever large communist power the North Koreans pay homage to today, the all-important question of why is raised.

Perhaps there are more answers to the question than these, but the most obvious ones are that the communist world has decided to test the will of the United States, or perhaps wishes to draw attention from another part of the world where another "incident" is about to take place.

In the past, the Kremlin has employed similar incidents for these two purposes. All the incidents in Berlin — the wall, and disruption of access routes, the violation of treaty agreements, the refusal to talk about German reunification — have been tests constructed for the United States to overcome.

That the shame of the wall still exists is proof that the U.S. flunks some of the tests.

But if the focusing of world attention in North Korea is intended to be a false alarm designed to hide overt actions elsewhere, Latin America — and in particular Guatemala — would be a good place to expect something to happen.

"Something" already happened in Guatemala, with the assassinations of two high-ranking American officials recently. Guatemala City, the capital, has been the scene of numerous shootings like those which took the lives of Col. John Webber Jr. and Lieut. Commander Ernest Monro, but these were the first Americans to be caught up in what has become a perpetual civil war between rightist and leftist elements.

Anti-American spokesmen have much of the presence of U. S. citizens in the Central American republic located just south of Mexico, and it is strongly suspected the communist attack on members of the U. S. mission was designed to force greater intervention in Guatemalan affairs by the U. S., and thus give the communists additional ammunition for their campaign of terrorism.

Conjecture, perhaps, but until Washington is able satisfactorily to explain the why of the North Korean affair, it behooves the government to keep its eyes and ears finely tuned at all other potential trouble spots in the world.

WHEN PEARL BAILEY was drafted by the canny David Merrick to revitalize "Hello Dolly," she opened to deserved hosannas in Washington—where one member of the audience established a noteworthy precedent. President Johnson climbed up on the stage and sang a chorus of "Hello Dolly" with Miss Bailey! Not that this fazed Miss Bailey! She told the audience happily, "I didn't know THIS child was going to show up"—and the audience roared its approval.

LBJ was aware before this that Pearl Bailey was an extraordinary lady. He had received this letter from her: "Dear Mr. President: You must sit up many hours in the night trying to think of answers. Don't bother, because as soon as you find the answers they're going to change the questions. Only listen to the sound of God and truth—and enjoy yourself." The President thinks it's one of the nicest letters he ever has gotten.

The late millionaire banker Bernard Baruch once visited one of Manhattan's most exclusive restaurants with two companions in tow, who were dressed in overalls. When the maitre d' tried to bar their way, Baruch pushed him aside, explaining, "Don't blame this on me. I bought a hearing aid and the union makes me carry two electricians."

A mama whale was teaching her baby whale the ropes. "Remember," she spouted, "that it's only when you get to the top and start to blow off steam that you get harpoons thrown at you!"

Speaking of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Infectious mononucleosis, known affectionately as the "kissing disease" or "mono," is a virus infection that affects the glands in the neck. College and medical students, nurses and hospital personnel frequently come down with this type of glandular fever.

The symptoms of sore throat, fever, body aches and general weakness that accompany "mono" also occur with ordinary colds, gripes and flu. "Mono" cannot be guessed at. It is mononucleosis only if the diagnosis is verified by the study of the blood, and the finding of a positive heterophile reaction.

Sometimes this antibody change is not immediately observed. It frequently took a long time for the test to become evident.

Now a new test has been reported by Dr. C. L. Lee and Dr. Israel Davidson of the Chicago Medical School. In two minutes it is now possible to know for certain if a patient has "mono."

A small amount of the patient's blood serum is placed on a slide and examined under the microscope. If "mono" is present, the patient's cells will stick together with some red cells taken from animals.

The rapid determination of infectious mononucleosis means that more intensive treatment can be started. Even though there is no special cure for this disease, added periods of rest and a nutritive diet are essential to avoid complications that may arise if the disease is not suspected or respected.

Thousands of people who have suffered paralysis of the lower portion of the body and both legs are condemned to live their lives in wheelchairs. I have known many in civilian life and in the armed forces and am constantly amazed by their tremendous courage. Drawing on an endless inner reserve these paraplegics have returned to society asking for no pity, wanting only to be allowed to function in complete dignity.

For them high hopes suddenly soared when there was a report in the newspapers that a spinal cord, severed by accident or disease, was once again put together with a return of function of the legs. A great deal of confusion has resulted from the premature publication of a story of such importance.

It is completely true that hospitals and scientific schools all over the world are constantly seeking to accomplish this magnificent objective. It is said that if man can conceive of an idea almost always it will be accomplished. This is our hope.

Unfortunately, the operation that has been described in Toronto has not been completely verified and is shrouded in secrecy and with question of its success. It will take time before all the details are known. Until then paraplegics must not rush to this area with hopes that may end in painful disappointment.

The transplantation of nerves has been successful in other areas. A small nerve taken from the thigh has been used to cure cases of facial paralysis. Muscle and nerve transplants are a reality. It is hoped that spinal cord surgery, too, will become successful in the next few years.

According to Boyle

By PATRICK E. O'KEEFE (For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP) — Mention "The Graduate" and young girls melt over Dustin Hoffman, young men sigh over Katharine Ross and movie buffs cheer director Mike Nichols.

But one key person has been overlooked—Charles Webb, who wrote the book that became the movie. Who is he, what has he been doing and has any of the glory rubbed off?

"Well," he said, "some TV people came out and shot me while I was working in the department store."

A department store? "I worked in the stock room, opening up crates of cosmetics. Then I'd put them on a cart and wheel it up to the floor. And I'd empty wastebaskets. I suppose seeing how a stockroom works is of value to a writer."

Webb originally sold the book to Embassy Pictures for $20,000, but with a wife and two young sons the money didn't last forever. "After the movie came out," he said, "I talked to Mike Nichols and told him I liked it. He mentioned there might be the possibility of a 'gift.'" Sure enough. "Joe Levine, the producer, sent me $5,000. When it arrived, I quit the stockroom." "The Graduate" was Webb's first (and so far only) novel published. When he was class of '61 at Williams College, he was awarded a fellowship providing $3,000 a year for three years. During that time he holed up in a room in Cambridge, Mass., and wrote his book.

People talk about the main character's alienation from his parents and society. But according to Webb, "The whole thing is not a conscious essay on social climate. It was more an attempt to portray an individual character. The 'you can't trust anybody over 30' thing happened after publication. I think the unalterable division of ages is a myth."

One of the most controversial bits in the film comes at the end when Benjamin, the graduate, rescues his lady-love from her church wedding-of-convenience. To do this, he wields a tall cross to beat back her angry parents. Some felt this was an attack on the church. Dustin Hoffman, who stars as The Graduate, feels otherwise. "I don't understand the big deal. I don't think the cross is so symbolic. Benjie doesn't hurt anyone; he just picks up the nearest thing to defend himself. It's not an attack against Christianity and marriage."

Webb said that as he wrote it, "I remember wondering if no one before had thought of using the cross as a weapon; it's an ideal shape. In a church, it seemed the obvious thing to pick up. People should be provoked; it's healthy and if something is good, it provokes."

"Though the movie and the book are similar in feeling," commented Webb, "I feel it's hard to compare them. The mediums are so different."

"There's a problem now with literature. Films have slowly been taking over. As a novelist I see it as something to fight. The trouble is there aren't enough books around to compete with good movies. It's always been hard to write fiction. New ways of writing fiction have to evolve so that it can compete and command the attention of the public more than it does. It's not that movies have gotten better; it's that writers have abandoned the fundamentals of good writing—telling a story as well as possible."

What of Webb, the graduate? "I've been working on a novel. It is in rough draft form now and is called 'The Last Usher.' It starts with a person asked to usher at the wedding of someone he doesn't know. He agrees to do it and is introduced to the members of the wedding. When the bride meets him, she calls the marriage off and asks if she can move in with him."

Isn't that where "The Graduate" ended? "Oh no," said Webb vehemently, "the characters are quite different."

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Not only the United States but all trading nations are now involved in the consequences of delicate financial maneuverings that some economists fear could upset world trade, with further damage to world stability.

The immediate goal is to save the dollar, billions of which have been placed in the hands of foreigners by heavy American spending abroad, and which represent a potential drain on America's large but shrinking supply of gold.

As an implement of the save-the-dollar policy, a tightrope is now strung between the United States and Europe, and in walking it, Uncle Sam is trying to prove that he can keep a steady balance—that he can cut the dollar drain to that continent before they cut the rope to safeguard their own economies.

The chances of a misadventure are high, for in order to reduce the dollar drain the United States must cause some temporary distress to European economies. It must reduce expenditures here by cutting back on investments, loans, military spending and travel. Such a policy cannot be pursued for long.

Accompanying the tightrope walker is a confusion of conflicting views. Below are stormy waters of disrupted world trade, the consequence of which would be deflation, or bad times, for the Western world.

The conflicts point up the delicate balance that must be maintained:

—While world prosperity depends upon free trade, the only immediate way out of America's balance of payments deficit is to restrict trade—temporarily.

—While temporary restrictions in American investments abroad might keep dollars at home, in the long run such a policy defeats itself, for the best way to bring dollars home from Europe is to make profitable investments there.

—While many of the trading nations have just finished with agreements to lower tariff barriers, controls of another sort are now about to be erected, and preferential treatment is being given to native companies through tax breaks.

—What seems to be the most delicate attitude of all is that, while advocating cutbacks of American investments overseas, European nations have suggested that too much of it might spoil things and invite retaliation against American goods. One of the great fears of economists is that controls will beget more controls. Controls also beget retaliation, as the French already have reminded the United States.

While warmly backing President Johnson's plans to stem the outflow of dollars, the French indicated that additional or prolonged measures aimed at reducing American spending in France—and enticing more French money here—could lead to protectionism.

Anonymous letters and those signed with the request that signatures be withheld will not be accepted for publication. Opinions expressed in this column are those of the writers and not necessarily those of The Herald.

Dear Editor,

I have noticed this past school and all previous years, that when the cage sports start, the Herald builds Circleville up until you make it sound like its No. 1 in the country especially in football but don't you think the other three county schools deserve the same consideration and spacing in the paper.

And when basketball season starts you give CHS a lot more publicity than the county schools, and everyone, including the students of CHS, knows that Circleville high school isn't very good in basketball and you hardly mention Logan Elm or Westfall high school.

Then after Circleville loses 7 or 8 games, like they usually do, you people at the Herald pick one of three remaining county schools and only then do you ever give them equal spacing in the paper; but what burns me up is that before Circleville loses 99 per cent of their games you never give the county schools as much publicity as Circleville receives and when Circleville does lose, you almost always put them on the back page but before they lose you give them front page.

I think all four county schools should be given equal publicity.

I am writing this letter as one more resident of Pickaway County, mourning the loss of what remained of Logan Elm. The historic significance of that famous old tree was known far and wide. This week I received a letter from a friend in Winston Salem, N. C. with a clipping from their newspaper concerning the burning of the stump that remained.

The article ended with the statement from Mr. M. E. Noggle, "I am glad the thing burned. It was such a miserable sight—it looked like a piece of driftwood." It seems that Mr. Noggle is getting his name passed around a little too.

Now what is wrong with driftwood? People gather it along seashores, we buy it at variety shops at a high price, and large, exclusive stores use it for window decorations.

I am surprised that as a member of the Historical Society, Mr. Noggle saw fit to accept the old May property or the old Second National Bank Building as gifts to the Society. By his way of reasoning should they too be destroyed as a "miserable sight?"

As I remember Mr. Noggle, like myself, is fast approaching the age where we will be needing a cane. Should we be destroyed as an eyesore?

A couple years ago I was at the famous Logan Elm sight, picked up some pieces of bark laying at the base of that "miserable sight." It will always be kept among my souvenirs in remembrance of the many school programs I helped present there before graduating from Pickaway Township School.

The World Today

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF (For James Marlow)

WASHINGTON (AP) — The judicial order reapportioning Indiana's congressional districts could pose a new question for the Supreme Court: What part should political considerations play under the "one man, one vote" principle.

Rep. Ray J. Madden, D-Ind., says the order Wednesday by a special three-judge federal panel will be appealed to the Supreme Court as an example of "political gerrymandering."

The high court's apportionment decisions so far have concentrated on assuring nearly equal numbers of people in each congressional district.

The Indiana case could mark the ultimate extension of the high court's involvement in what the late Justice Felix Frankfurter called a "political thicket" in warning against letting apportionment matters come before the federal court.

By a 2-1 vote, the three federal judges established a new alignment for Indiana's 11 congressional districts which Democrats say will increase the present 6-5 Republican majority to 9-2. Only two Democrats, Reps. Madden of Gary and Lee H. Hamilton of Columbus would have districts with substantial Democratic majorities.

Democratic Rep. J. Edward Roush would be put into the same district with Republican E. Ross Adair; Democrat John Brademas would get substantial new Republican territory; and Democrat Andrew Jacobs Jr., who represents Indianapolis, would lose half of his old district and pick up parts of two others, both strongly Republican.

Madden, in a House speech, called the ruling—in which two Republican judges outvoted one Democrat—the "result of a Republican conspiracy" to "disenfranchise incumbent Democratic congressmen."

He also called for an investigation of reapportionment cases by the House Judiciary Committee.

To that, Rep. Thomas G. Abernethy, D-Miss., responded that the Indiana case showed Congress should have passed legislation to keep redistricting out of the federal courts.

The Indiana redistricting ended up in court when the Supreme Court rejected an earlier plan because of a 20 per cent variation between the largest and smallest district, and the legislature was unable to agree on a new version.

The new Indiana alignment has districts substantially equal in population, with regular outlines quite unlike the grotesque districts some states have constructed in the past.

A close parallel to the promised appeal by Indiana Democrats came when the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party attacked that state's districts on the grounds they were drawn to prevent election of a Negro from the heavily Negro Delta region.

A three-judge Mississippi court refused to consider the case and William O. Douglas was the only Supreme Court Justice who favored hearing it. Like the Indiana districts, Mississippi's are substantially equal and regularly shaped.

Designing congressional districts to favor one party is nothing new, and both parties have benefited from this practice from time to time. Any Supreme Court ruling thus could have an impact as far-reaching as any in the entire apportionment question.

The immediate goal is to save the dollar, billions of which have been placed in the hands of foreigners by heavy American spending abroad, and which represent a potential drain on America's large but shrinking supply of gold.

As an implement of the save-the-dollar policy, a tightrope is now strung between the United States and Europe, and in walking it, Uncle Sam is trying to prove that he can keep a steady balance—that he can cut the dollar drain to that continent before they cut the rope to safeguard their own economies.

The chances of a misadventure are high, for in order to reduce the dollar drain the United States must cause some temporary distress to European economies. It must reduce expenditures here by cutting back on investments, loans, military spending and travel. Such a policy cannot be pursued for long.

Accompanying the tightrope walker is a confusion of conflicting views. Below are stormy waters of disrupted world trade, the consequence of which would be deflation, or bad times, for the Western world.

The conflicts point up the delicate balance that must be maintained:

—While world prosperity depends upon free trade, the only immediate way out of America's balance of payments deficit is to restrict trade—temporarily.

—While temporary restrictions in American investments abroad might keep dollars at home, in the long run such a policy defeats itself, for the best way to bring dollars home from Europe is to make profitable investments there.

—While many of the trading nations have just finished with agreements to lower tariff barriers, controls of another sort are now about to be erected, and preferential treatment is being given to native companies through tax breaks.

—What seems to be the most delicate attitude of all is that, while advocating cutbacks of American investments overseas, European nations have suggested that too much of it might spoil things and invite retaliation against American goods.

One of the great fears of economists is that controls will beget more controls. Controls also beget retaliation, as the French already have reminded the United States.

While warmly backing President Johnson's plans to stem the outflow of dollars, the French indicated that additional or prolonged measures aimed at reducing American spending in France—and enticing more French money here—could lead to protectionism.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor,

I have noticed this past school and all previous years, that when the cage sports start, the Herald builds Circleville up until you make it sound like its No. 1 in the country especially in football but don't you think the other three county schools deserve the same consideration and spacing in the paper.

And when basketball season starts you give CHS a lot more publicity than the county schools, and everyone, including the students of CHS, knows that Circleville high school isn't very good in basketball and you hardly mention Logan Elm or Westfall high school.

Then after Circleville loses 7 or 8 games, like they usually do, you people at the Herald pick one of three remaining county schools and only then do you ever give them equal spacing in the paper; but what burns me up is that before Circleville loses 99 per cent of their games you never give the county schools as much publicity as Circleville receives and when Circleville does lose, you almost always put them on the back page but before they lose you give them front page.

I think all four county schools should be given equal publicity.

Dear Sir:

I am writing this letter as one more resident of Pickaway County, mourning the loss of what remained of Logan Elm. The historic significance of that famous old tree was known far and wide. This week I received a letter from a friend in Winston Salem, N. C. with a clipping from their newspaper concerning the burning of the stump that remained.

The article ended with the statement from Mr. M. E. Noggle, "I am glad the tree burned. It was such a miserable sight—it looked like a piece of driftwood." It seems that Mr. Noggle is getting his name passed around a little too.

Now what is wrong with driftwood? People gather it along seashores, we buy it at variety shops at a high price, and large, exclusive stores use it for window decorations.

I am surprised that as a member of the Historical Society, Mr. Noggle saw fit to accept the old May property or the old Second National Bank Building as gifts to the Society. By his way of reasoning should they too be destroyed as a "miserable sight?"

As I remember Mr. Noggle, like myself, is fast approaching the age where we will be needing a cane. Should we be destroyed as an eyesore?

A couple years ago I was at the famous Logan Elm sight, picked up some pieces of bark laying at the base of that "miserable sight." It will always be kept among my souvenirs in remembrance of the many school programs I helped present there before graduating from Pickaway Township School.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The judicial order reapportioning Indiana's congressional districts could pose a new question for the Supreme Court: What part should political considerations play under the "one man, one vote" principle.

Rep. Ray J. Madden, D-Ind., says the order Wednesday by a special three-judge federal panel will be appealed to the Supreme Court as an example of "political gerrymandering."

The high court's apportionment decisions so far have concentrated on assuring nearly equal numbers of people in each congressional district.

The Indiana case could mark the ultimate extension of the high court's involvement in what the late Justice Felix Frankfurter called a "political thicket" in warning against letting apportionment matters come before the federal court.

By a 2-1 vote, the three federal judges established a new alignment for Indiana's 11 congressional districts which Democrats say will increase the present 65 Republican majority to 92. Only two Democrats, Reps. Madden of Gary and Lee H. Hamilton of Columbus would have districts with substantial Democratic majorities.

Democratic Rep. J. Edward Roush would be put into the same district with Republican E. Ross Adair; Democrat John Brademas would get substantial new Republican territory; and Democrat Andrew Jacobs Jr., who represents Indianapolis, would lose half of his old district and pick up parts of two others, both strongly Republican.

Madden, in a House speech, called the ruling—in which two Republican judges outvoted one Democrat—the "result of a Republican conspiracy" to "disenfranchise incumbent Democratic congressmen."

He also called for an investigation of reapportionment cases by the House Judiciary Committee.

To that, Rep. Thomas G. Abernethy, D-Miss., responded that the Indiana case showed Congress should have passed legislation to keep redistricting out of the federal courts.

The Indiana redistricting ended up in court when the Supreme Court rejected an earlier plan because of a 20 per cent variation between the largest and smallest district, and the legislature was unable to agree on a new version.

The new Indiana alignment has districts substantially equal in population, with regular outlines quite unlike the grotesque districts some states have constructed in the past.

A close parallel to the promised appeal by Indiana Democrats came when the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party attacked that state's districts on the grounds they were drawn to prevent election of a Negro from the heavily Negro Delta region.

A three-judge Mississippi court refused to consider the case and William O. Douglas was the only Supreme Court Justice who favored hearing it. Like the Indiana districts, Mississippi's are substantially equal and regularly shaped.

Designing congressional districts to favor one party is nothing new, and both parties have benefited from this practice from time to time. Any Supreme Court ruling thus could have an impact as far-reaching as any in the entire apportionment question.

This year that old-fashioned comic Valentine seems to have lost some of its humor — now that is costs a total of six cents to mail it to any acquaintance you felt like kidding.

And its Grandpappy Jenkins who says you're a real old-timer if you can remember when the comic valentines were called "penny dreadfuls." By the way — what was a penny, anyway?

The wages of the town flag raiser of Hopkinton, Mass., has been raised 166 per cent—from 15 to 40 cents a day. What is this — inflation?

Dear Abby:

'Church Mouse' Not Really in Love

DEAR ABBY: I am an unmarried woman with a problem I can't confide to anyone. I think I am in love with my pastor. I go to church every chance I get, just to look at him and listen to him. He is married and has a fine family so I know there is no hope for me, but I can't help the way I feel about him. I don't want to give up going to church but I'm afraid if I keep going there I shall not be able to hide my feelings much longer. What should I do?

DEAR CHURCH: You are one reader I am not going to send to your clergyman. What you feel is not "love." It's a combination of respect, gratitude, admiration and devotion, with a penchant for fantasizing. Look for a nice single man in whom you can develop an interest, and regard your pastor as a spiritual leader and a good friend.

DEAR ABBY: Every year my husband gives a "birthday party" for Ruby, his first wife who has been dead for 12 years now. All their old friends are invited and they have a regular party for "Ruby"—food, drinks, birthday cake and everything. Then they all go out to the cemetery to "talk" to Ruby and leave her a piece of birthday cake.

I have no objections to my husband visiting Ruby's grave on her birthday, or any other day, but this "birthday party" really gets me. I've gone to two. Do I have to go to any more? And what do you think of such parties?

DEAR WONDERING: I think your husband is digging pretty deep to find an excuse to give a party. You don't have to go to these parties unless you want to. And neither does anyone else.

DEAR ABBY: I have a 6-year-old son and I think there is something wrong with him. Mentally, I mean. He does terrible things, just to provoke me, and when I give him a good spanking he seems to enjoy it. It's almost as tho he can't get enough of a beating. The harder I hit him the better he likes it.

Abby, I am at the end of my rope with this kid and I have had some pretty terrifying impulses. Please, please tell me what to do. My husband doesn't believe in head doctors, but I'm afraid our boy needs one. He just isn't normal.

NO NAME, FS.
DEAR NO NAME: Ask your pediatrician what he thinks of your son's behavior, then follow his recommendation. People who don't "believe" in head doctors are usually in need of them most.

CONFIDENTIAL TO THE HAIRY ONE: No girl who is old enough to be "embarrassed" by a heavy growth of unsightly dark hair on her legs should have to "beg" her mother to let her shave it off. After all when a boy has enough hair on his face to shave, he doesn't have to "beg" his mother to let him shave, does he?

Troubled? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069. For a personal reply, inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Braves Outscore St. Mary, 65-48 At TV Sectional

YOUNG FIRES — Eddie Young fires a shot at the basket during the Logan Elm-St. Mary game Friday. His teammate, Dennis Karshner heads for the basket to rebound while Tom Plank (15) of St. Mary watches.

Logan Elm rolled to a convincing 65-48 victory over Columbus St. Mary Friday in the third game played in the sectional tournament at Teays Valley.

With four starters scoring in double figures the outcome of the game was never in doubt. St. Mary notched the first two points when Dan Burdett drove the baseline and canned a bucket with a minute and ten gone.

But Logan Elm came right back and Dennis Karshner cashed in on a pair of charity tosses to knot the game and Royce Woolever put the Braves ahead, 4-2, on a shot from under the bucket with 5:12 showing on the clock.

LOGAN Elm was never behind after that. They rolled on to a 16-8 first quarter lead. St. Mary's Rams, fouling frequently, provided the Braves with 11 chances at the foul line in the first quarter and Logan Elm converted seven of them.

The Braves connected on four of 12 field goal attempts in the first quarter and pulled 10 rebounds off the boards. They committed three turnovers.

St. Mary made only three of 14 shots, had nine rebounds and made two turnovers in the first quarter.

In the second period, the Braves outscored the Rams, 13-10, outscored them 11-9, and committed five turnovers compared to three for the Rams.

The Braves hit six of 15 shots from the field in the second quarter while the Rams were finding the range five times in 14 shots. Given four charity shots, St. Mary was unable to convert any of them into scores. The Braves made one of four charity tosses.

In the third quarter, the Braves notched 21 points, 16 of them from the field. They sank eight of 15 field goals and made five of nine foul shots.

THE Rams sank six of 22 shots from the field on the third quarter. The rebounding was even in the third period with both teams pulling 12 off the boards. The Braves had two turnovers in the quarter.

In the final quarter, both coaches unloaded their benches. Logan Elm scored 15 points in the period and St. Mary 16. It was the only period in which they outscored the Braves.

Logan Elm hit five of 17 in the period and St. Mary converted five of 18 shots from the field.

For the game, the Braves sank 23 of 59 shots, a 39 per cent shooting average. They pulled down a total of 43 rebounds. At the foul line they made 19 of 33 shots, a 57.5 per cent shooting average.

St. Mary cagers sank 19 of 68 shots, a 28 per cent average. At the foul line, the Rams made 10 of 22 shots. They had 42 rebounds for the game and committed seven turnovers.

The leading scorer for Logan Elm was Royce Woolever, with 22 points. Dale Jenne notched 11 points, Dennis Karshner 13 and Danny Fausnaugh 17. Young and Helwegen did not score.

DANNY Cooper, getting into the action in the closing minutes of play notched two.

It was the final game for St. Mary, a Columbus Parochial school that will close its doors at the end of the current school year.

Their leading scorer was Burdett with 18 markers.

The next game for Logan Elm is 8:30 p. m. Saturday when they meet Amanda. Canal Winchester and West Jefferson will play the preliminary game that night.

Friday's schedule finds Academy playing Wehrle at 7 p. m. and Westfall tangle with Ohio Deaf at 8:30 p. m.

Olympic Luge Practice Delayed

VILLARD-DE-LANES, France (AP) — Practice for the Olympic luge doubles competition was again postponed today, leaving in doubt whether the event can be staged before the Winter Games end Sunday.

Practice runs on the competition course are mandatory before the race heats are held.

The race committee was to meet later today to decide how to handle the event.

South Africa In Olympics; Others Out

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — South Africa is back in the Olympic movement, at least three other African states are out and the storm of criticism over the International Olympic Committee's action is growing, with the powerful voice of the Soviet Union in the vanguard.

The Algerian Olympic Committee and the Uganda National Council of Sports said Saturday that Algeria and Uganda would not compete in the summer Olympics in Mexico because of the readmission of South Africa, which had been ousted in 1963 because of its segregationist policy of apartheid.

In their actions, Algeria and Uganda joined Ethiopia, which withdrew Friday, the same day IOC President Avery Brundage announced that IOC members had voted by mail to reinstate South Africa for the Mexico Games.

Another African nation—Zambia—announced it is studying the IOC's decision before deciding on a course of action.

Other African and Asian countries possibly could be awaiting to see how the Soviet Union, an Olympic giant, will react.

So far, Russian reaction has been in the form of vehement disapproval of the IOC's action.

Killy Nears Sweep in Ski Races

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — France's Jean-Claude Killy, trying to complete a sweep of the three Olympic Alpine ski events, grabbed the lead in the first of two special slalom runs Saturday after Italy's Eugenio Monti, the Red Devil of bobsledding, won his second gold medal of the Winter Games.

Killy, who earlier had won the downhill and the giant slalom, swept down the Chamrousse slope in 49.37 seconds, giving him a lead of .31 of a second over Austria's Alfred Matt going into the second run which followed immediately after the first.

Toni Sailer of Austria is the only man ever to win all three races. He did it in 1956 at Cortina, Italy.

Disaster once again struck the American ski team as Billy Kidd of Stowe, Vt., silver medalist in the race four years ago, lost a ski on the first run and crashed against a pole on one leg. He was not hurt but had to drop out of the race.

Monti, who hadn't gained a gold medal in 12 years of trying until he won the two-man bobsled a week ago, piloted his four-man sled to victory at Alpe d'Huez in a two-run time of two minutes, 17.39 seconds.

Fred Anton Maier of Norway made a strong attempt to join Monti, Killy and three other competitors as double gold medalists by breaking his lited world record in the 10,000-meter speed skating race with a time of 15 minutes, 23.9 seconds.

But Johnny Hoeglin of Sweden, skating after Maier had left the rink, eclipsed that time with a clocking of 15:23 and took the gold medal out of Maier's grasp.

By HERB AMEY

Amanda - Clearcreek, second seeded squad in the tourney, edged Madison South, 55-52, in the second tilt on the card and Logan Elm run away from Columbus St. Mary, 65-48.

Fans began pouring into the gymnasium early and the place was packed by the 6 p. m. tip-off of the Winchester-Plains game. In no time at all the seats were taken and rooters were forced to stand along the walls and in the corners.

Both Canal Winchester and The Plains had poor shooting nights in the first game. In 56 shots, the Winchester Indians sank 19. They made only 23 of 35 shots from the foul stripe.

MT. STERLING made 18 of 59 shots from the field. The Blue Devils converted on 1y of 30 visits to the charity line.

The Devils jumped out to a 5-1 lead early in the tilt. However, Roger Epperson and Bill Miles paced the Indians to a 16-13 first period count.

Most of Canal Winchester's points came on outside shots. The Indians appeared to have trouble cracking the 1-3-1 zone defense of Mt. Sterling.

The Indians were threatened early in the second period. Their lead dwindled to three markers before they put on a spurt that sent the score to 27-21 with a minute and a half to play in the half.

Seconds later a jumper by Bob Crable and two tap-ins by Gary Bandy set the score at 28-26, with Canal Winchester still in front.

With 19 seconds left Bandy was fouled. In the one and one situation, he sank the first one but missed on the second. He grabbed his own rebound, shot and missed and Crable wrestled down the rebound. His shot was wide and Winchester came down with it as time ran out.

THE Indians, paced by Epperson's three goals, again ballooned the score at 38-30 with three minutes left in the third quarter.

Bandy hit one for Mt. Sterling but it was erased by field goals by Hickman and Miles to give the Indians their biggest spread, 42-32.

After three periods it was 46-40.

The fourth quarter was slowed down by penalties. Steve Reisinger and Jim Shipley fouled out for Mt. Sterling and Bill Miles left the game via the foul route for Canal Winchester.

The Indians held a slight edge in rebounding throughout the tilt. They pulled down 45 while the shorter Blue Devils got 42. Turnovers showed Winchester with 15 and Mt. Sterling with 18.

Roger Epperson led all scorers, cracking in nine field goals and six free throws for 24 markers for Canal Winchester. Hiles also hit in double figures for the Aces, canning three field goals and six free tosses for 12 points.

Bandy notched 21 for Mt. Sterling on eight field goals and five penalty shots. Crable had 12 points, hitting three shots from the field and eight from the line.

AMANDA had rough sailing the whole trip before they pulled it out of the fire in the last period. Their only lead of the first three quarters came when Joe Hiles sank the first field goal of the game for a 2-0 count with 48 seconds gone.

The South Lions built up a four point lead midway through the period and carried it on to the end, 14-11. Hiles had five of Amanda's total in the first eight minutes.

The Aces from Amanda fought back and with 2:45 to halftime tied it up at 18-18 on two points by Hiles and Randy Poling and three by Steve Kinser.

The score was knotted twice more before Madison South spurred into a 26-22 halftime edge.

Amanda stayed within striking range during the third period but couldn't quite make it until the last few minutes of the period. With 1:53 to go and Madison South on top, 38-31, the Aces switched to a full court pressure defense.

Kinser converted a South turnover into two points. Hickman canned a field goal and Poling's two free tosses with 38 seconds to go brought the score to 38-37.

KINSER put Amanda into the lead for the first time since the opening bucket when he dropped in a shot for a 41-39 spread with 7:13 to go. Randy Scott dropped in a field goal later and Bob Al-person's two free tosses put Madison South on top for the last time, 43-41.

Amanda tied it up on Hickman's field goal and went in to a five point lead before Madison South could retaliate. They got it to within one when Roger Summers stole the ball and drove all the way for a 48-47 count, but Amanda still controlled the score.

The two teams traded a pair of buckets. Chuck Carpenter's goal with three minutes left put Amanda ahead by three, 52-49. A minute later Don Simpson of Madison South was fouled. He made the first half on the one and one but missed the second.

Larry Stewart pulled down the rebound and put it back up for a tie score, 52-52. Kinser scored for the Aces and the score stood, 54-52. Amanda had the ball on a defensive rebound, was charged with walking at the 1:22 mark. Madison took over.

Twenty seconds later Stewart took a shot for the Lions but was fouled in the act. He missed both chances at the foul line and with 1:04 to go Amanda took possession.

Attempting to stall the Aces worked the ball around for twenty ticks of the clock. A pass went astray and as two boys battled for it Amanda was charged with an offensive foul.

TIME was running out while Madison South looked for the tying shot. Only twenty seconds were left when Randy Poling got a hand on the ball and tied it up with the Lions' Steve Eades. The tip went to Kinser of Amanda and he was fouled by Summers, who was benched with five personals.

Kinser made on to set the final mark at 55-52. Amanda hit 21 of 50 field goals and 13 of 26 free tosses. Madison South hit one more field goal in five more tries but could hit on only eight of 21 shots from the charity stripe.

Kinser was top scorer for the Aces, knocking in nine field goals and four free tosses for 22 markers. Teammate Poling had 14 points on five field goals and four free tosses.

South Africa In Olympics; Others Out

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — South Africa is back in the Olympic movement, at least three other African states are out and the storm of criticism over the International Olympic Committee's action is growing, with the powerful voice of the Soviet Union in the vanguard.

The Algerian Olympic Committee and the Uganda National Council of Sports said Saturday that Algeria and Uganda would not compete in the summer Olympics in Mexico because of the readmission of South Africa, which had been ousted in 1963 because of its segregationist policy of apartheid.

In their actions, Algeria and Uganda joined Ethiopia, which withdrew Friday, the same day IOC President Avery Brundage announced that IOC members had voted by mail to reinstate South Africa for the Mexico Games.

Another African nation—Zambia—announced it is studying the IOC's decision before deciding on a course of action.

Other African and Asian countries possibly could be waiting to see how the Soviet Union, an Olympic giant, will react.

So far, Russian reaction has been in the form of vehement disapproval of the IOC's action.

Kinser converted a South turnover into two points. Hickman canned a field goal and Poling's two free tosses with 38 seconds to go brought the score to 38-37.

KINSER put Amanda into the lead for the first time since the opening bucket when he dropped in a shot for a 41-39 spread with 7:13 to go. Randy Scott dropped in a field goal later and Bob Alderson's two free tosses put Madison South on top for the last time, 43-41.

Amanda tied it up on Hickman's field goal and went in to a five point lead before Madison South could retaliate. They got it to within one when Roger Summers stole the ball and drove all the way for a 48-47 count, but Amanda still controlled the score.

The two teams traded a pair of buckets. Chuck Carpenter's goal with three minutes left put Amanda ahead by three, 52-49. A minute later Don Simpson of Madison South was fouled. He made the first half on the one and one but missed the second.

Larry Stewart pulled down the rebound and put it back up for a tie score, 52-52. Kinser scored for the Aces and the score stood, 54-52. Amanda had the ball on a defensive rebound, was charged with walking at the 1:22 mark. Madison took over.

Twenty seconds later Stewart took a shot for the Lions but was fouled in the act. He missed both chances at the foul line and with 1:04 to go Amanda took possession.

Attempting to stall the Aces worked the ball around for twenty ticks of the clock. A pass went astray and as two boys battled for it Amanda was charged with an offensive foul.

TIME was running out while Madison South looked for the tying shot. Only twenty seconds were left when Randy Poling got a hand on the ball and tied it up with the Lions' Steve Eades. The tip went to Kinser of Amanda and he was fouled by Summers, who was benched with five personals.

Kinser made on to set the final mark at 55-52. Amanda hit 21 of 50 field goals and 13 of 26 free tosses. Madison South hit one more field goal in five more tries but could hit on only eight of 21 shots from the charity stripe.

Kinser was top scorer for the Aces, knocking in nine field goals and four free tosses for 22 markers. Teammate Poling had 14 points on five field goals and four free tosses.

Eades and Simpson hit in double figures for Madison South, Eades with seven field goals and two free throws for 16 points and Simpson with four field goals and three free tosses for 11.

Amanda plays Logan Elm next Saturday.

Rockets Lose 17th Straight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was a big night for losers in the National Basketball Association.

The San Diego Rockets lost for a record-tying 17th straight time Friday night, 124-108 to Philadelphia.

Coach Al Bianchi of Seattle lost his restraint and was thrown out of the game, and then his SuperSonics went on to lose 147-118 to Baltimore.

Rumors that Chicago coach John Kerr would be replaced lost out — at least for the tie being — to a vote of confidence given Kerr by club president Dick Klein. The Bulls then went out and lost to Boston 124-108.

In other NBA games, San Francisco edged Los Angeles 118-116 and Cincinnati trounced New York 125-101.

Rider's basketball team lost four regulars before the season was half-way finished. They had a dislocated shoulder, a broken ankle, a broken collarbone and a broken foot.

When East Carolina beat George Washington 71-68 in basketball it marked their first victory after 18 straight defeats on the road.

Quarterback Bart Starr of the Green Bay Packers played for Alabama in 1954.

Draft Laws Explained

EDITOR'S NOTE: In an effort to create a greater public understanding of the laws and regulations governing the induction of personnel into the Armed Forces, the Selective Service System has prepared a series of pertinent questions and corresponding responses concerning provisions of the draft law. Here is another of the series.

Q. May I volunteer for induction through the Selective Service System even if I have a Class III-A deferment?

A. Any registrant may make application for voluntary induction by signing Application for Voluntary Induction (SSS Form 254.) If, however, the Local Board on review of your case should classify you in Class II-A, II-C, or retain you in III-A, you will not be processed as a volunteer.

Q. Does the Military Selective Service Act provide any special consideration for the National Guard?

A. Section 1(d) of the Act states "that it is essential that the strength and organization of the National Guard, both Ground and Air, as an integral part of the first line of defenses of this nation, be at all times maintained and assured." Section 6(c) (2) (A) of the same act provides for the deferment from induction for members of the National Guard as long as they satisfactorily participate in prescribed training. They are required to serve in this capacity for 6 years, during which time they must complete not less than four consecutive months of active duty for training.

Q. When is a Selective Service classification subject to court review?

A. Section (b) (3) (c) of the Military Selective Service Act of 1967 provides: "No judicial review shall be made of the classification or processing of any registrant by local boards, appeal boards, or the President, except as a defense to a criminal prosecution instituted under section 12 of this title, after the registrant has responded to an order to report for induction, or for civilian work in the case of a registrant determined to be opposed to participating in war in any form: Provided, that such review shall go to the question of the jurisdiction herein reserved to local boards, appeal boards, and the President only when there is no basis in fact for the classification assigned to such registrant."

Motorist Injured In Accident

Cyril Michael Malecka, 56, Lockbourne Air Force Base, sustained a slight laceration at 11:15 p. m. Friday when he lost control of his car on Route 104 in Scioto Twp.

Malecka told Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff George Lindner he was traveling north when he lost control trying to avoid a pickup truck.

He was cited for failure to have his car under control.

Halleck Files Murder Appeal

Carl Edward Halleck has filed his appeal of the first degree murder slaying of Ironton Police Chief Walter E. Markel, Judge William Ammer announced today.

Judge Ammer appointed Elliott and Richard Myers as Halleck's defense attorneys.

Halleck was convicted, with a recommendation of mercy, by a Pickaway County Grand Jury. He was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Postmaster Seeks Bids for Orient Office

Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien has announced that the Post Office Department is seeking competitive bids to build and lease the new Post Office at Orient.

The building will be constructed according to departmental specifications and will be located on the east side of Stahl Road. The Post Office Department holds an assignable option on this site.

The purpose of competitive bidding, Mr. O'Brien said, is to encourage the most attractive and economical offer to the Government in line with President Johnson's economy program to achieve the best possible postal service at the least possible cost.

The new post office building will be built by the successful bidder with private capital and will be on the property tax rolls the same as any other privately owned property in the community.

No money from the federal government will be used in constructing the building. The Post Office Department will pay rent to the owner after construction is completed and the post office begins operations in the new building.

The new building will be leased to the Post Office Department for a basic period of 10 years, with options to renew the lease for an additional 20 years. Local residents and organizations as well as other interested parties are urged to submit bids to construct the new building and lease it to the Department.

Information on bidding and all necessary documents may be obtained from Regional Real Estate Officer D. J. Gaughan, Post Office Department, Post Office Box 1999, Cincinnati, Ohio 45201.

Today in Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON (AP) — United Nations Secretary-General U Thant will meet with President Johnson Wednesday, presumably to discuss his Vietnam peace-probe trip to India, Russia, Britain and France.

There was little optimism in Washington for a breakthrough toward peace talks and the results of U Thant's peacemaking efforts were generally described as negative in dispatches from abroad.

White House press secretary George Christian said Friday U Thant indicated he wanted to meet with Johnson "as was done in the past few days with other heads of state he has visited."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Steps are being taken to appoint Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner to a federal judgeship, according to Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill.

The White House has acknowledged Illinois Democrats' endorsement of Kerner for the post, Rostenkowski said, and FBI clearance has been asked. There were reports Kerner was in line for an expected vacancy on the 7th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals in Chicago. He has announced he will not seek a third term as governor.

Capital Footnotes

The latest Communist offensive has raised the number of refugees in Vietnam to 350,000 men, women and children, according to reports from Saigon. State Department officials say the total may go higher with figures from the embattled city of Hue and five scattered South Vietnam provinces which have poor communications.

The appointment of Brig. Gen. Tom E. Marchbanks Jr. as chief of the Air Force Reserve—with a promotion to major general—has been confirmed by the Senate.

Edward K. Thompson, retired editor of Life Magazine has been appointed special assistant to Secretary of State Dean Rusk to deal with information on Vietnam and Southeast Asia.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., will be represented in the May 7 Democratic presidential primary in Cleveland's 22nd congressional district.

McCarthy, challenging President Johnson for the Democratic nomination, will also allow his name to go on ballots in four other Ohio districts—the 2nd in Cincinnati, 3rd in Dayton, 12th in Columbus and 13th in suburbs south and west of Cleveland.

The senator signed the necessary papers for the action Friday. He said that although he will be unable to wage a full campaign in Ohio due to previous commitments, the entry was being made in the five districts to give Democrats a chance to show their position.

Draft Laws Explained

EDITOR'S NOTE: In an effort to create a greater public understanding of the laws and regulations governing the induction of personnel into the Armed Forces, the Selective Service System has prepared a series of pertinent questions and corresponding responses concerning provisions of the draft law. Here is another of the series.

Q. May I volunteer for induction through the Selective Service System even if I have a Class III-A deferment?

A. Any registrant may make application for voluntary induction by signing Application for Voluntary Induction (SSS Form 254.) If, however, the Local Board on review of your case should classify you in Class II-A, II-C, or retain you in III-A, you will not be processed as a volunteer.

Q. Does the Military Selective Service Act provide any special consideration for the National Guard?

A. Section 1(d) of the Act states "that it is essential that the strength and organization of the National Guard, both Ground and Air, as an integral part of the first line of defenses of this nation, be at all times maintained and assured." Section 6(c) (2) (A) of the same act provides for the deferment from induction for members of the National Guard as long as they satisfactorily participate in prescribed training. They are required to serve in this capacity for 6 years, during which time they must complete not less than four consecutive months of active duty for training.

Q. When is a Selective Service classification subject to court review?

A. Section (b) (3) (c) of the Military Selective Service Act of 1967 provides: "No judicial review shall be made of the classification or processing of any registrant by local boards, appeal boards, or the President, except as a defense to a criminal prosecution instituted under section 12 of this title, after the registrant has responded either affirmatively or negatively to an order to report for induction, or for civilian work in the case of a registrant determined to be opposed to participating in war in any form: Provided, that such review shall go to the question of the jurisdiction herein reserved to local boards, appeal boards, and the President only when there is no basis in fact for the classification assigned to such registrant."

Malecka's truck overturned on the highway, coming to a rest in the ditch along the southbound lane.

Postmaster Seeks Bids for Orient Office

Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien has announced that the Post Office Department is seeking competitive bids to build and lease the new Post Office at Orient.

The building will be constructed according to departmental specifications and will be located on the east side of Stahl Road. The Post Office Department holds an assignable option on this site.

The purpose of competitive bidding, Mr. O'Brien said, is to encourage the most attractive and economical offer to the Government in line with President Johnson's economy program to achieve the best possible postal service at the least possible cost.

The new post office building will be built by the successful bidder with private capital and will be on the property tax rolls the same as any other privately owned property in the community.

No money from the federal government will be used in constructing the building. The Post Office Department will pay rent to the owner after construction is completed and the post office begins operations in the new building.

The new building will be leased to the Post Office Department for a basic period of 10 years, with options to renew the lease for an additional 20 years. Local residents and organizations as well as other interested parties are urged to submit bids to construct the new building and lease it to the Department.

Information on bidding and all necessary documents may be obtained from Regional Real Estate Officer D. J. Gaughan, Post Office Department, Post Office Box 1999, Cincinnati, Ohio 45201.
